Growing Into Infinite Possibilities

CO-CREATING THE FUTURE OF EDUCATION

This year 2021, PIM deepened connections with like-minded organizations that prioritize creating impact towards the space of international education.

Together with global partners, PIM leveraged on opportunities coming from different directions and endeavored to create value to students who have been exposed to prolonged virtual learning, with many students suffering from technology fatigue.

From transforming international internships to a virtual platform and developing leadership programs built on advanced technology to close physical boundaries; international activities at PIM continued to be implemented with surprising progress.

Acting nimbly and prioritizing networking helped PIM to co-create the future of education and develop new standards of international education while ensuring proper health and safety measures.

5. MARUYAMA Kiyonobu, Soka University
6. Ms. Navjot Kaur, VTC Hong Kong
7. Mr. Tung Pui Tam, VTC Hong Kong
8. Ms. Saina Tamang, VTC Hong Kong

Here's what Mali Akiyama has to say about her experience at PIM which was featured in her university magazine.

VIRTUAL Interns

Mali Akiyama

What must I do when I'm a student?

This was question I had three years ago to a salary man. He answered, saying that he regretted not meeting enough people and that he should have broadened his network. He added that having friends in many places will help you achieve your dreams.

I didn't understand what he said then, but now I do.

When our lifestyles changed drastically due to the pandemic, online became the tool to have new friends from all over the world.

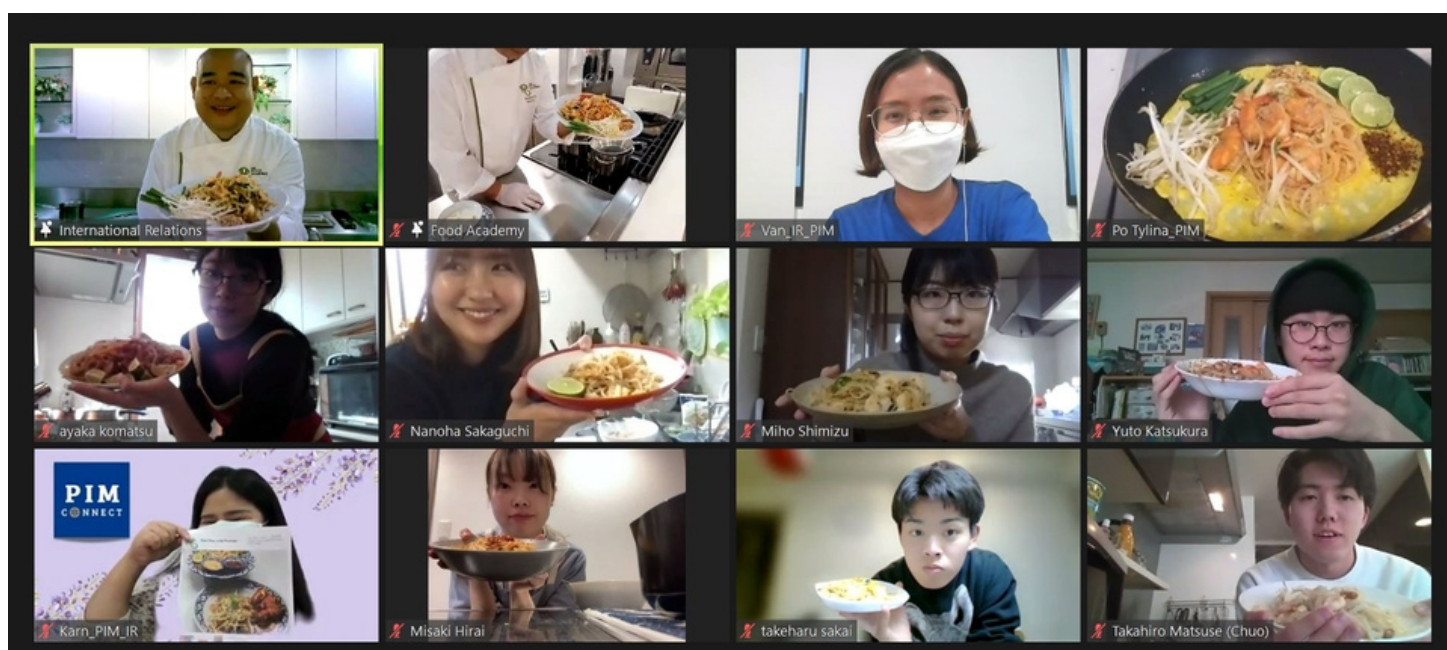

Joining PIM's virtual internship helped me understand why Thailand is the land of smiles. I learned the true meaning of global because none of the participants were native English speakers and yet we were able to understand each other and become friends.

I appreciate the people behind the scenes, I admire them and would like to be global just like them.

VIRTUAL cooking class

In August 2021, three Students from VTC, Hong Kong and four Students from Soka University, Japan. They also actively participated in a PIM Food Academy virtual cooking class, where students prepared Pad Thai and bananas with coconut milk from their own homes.

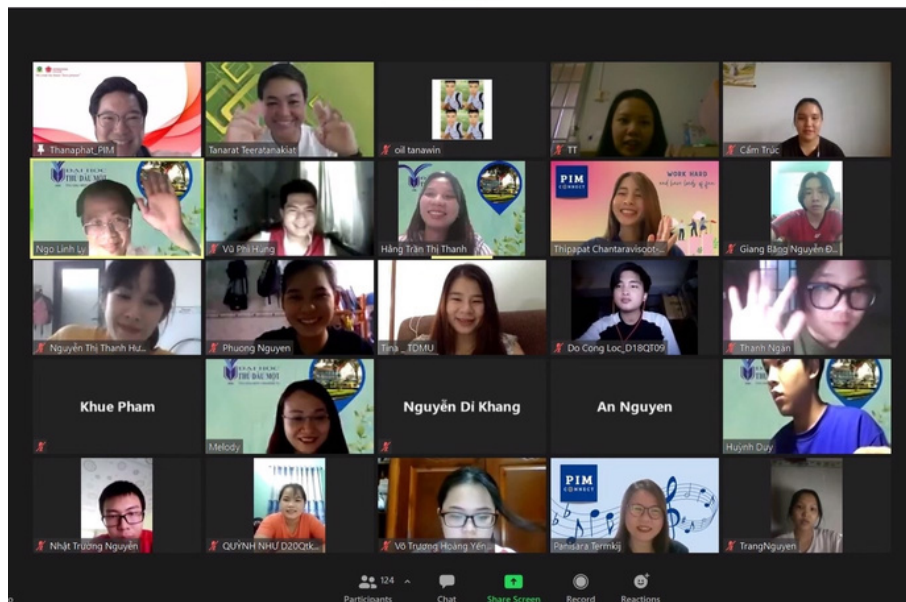

V-VISITING PROGRAM

V-Visiting programs were created to overcome the physical challenge of arranging knowledge sessions.

IR re-developed its standard visitor program by creating a virtual platform to deliver the introduction of the CP Group and PIM.

In 2021, the program was well-received by three (3) partner universities in Vietnam:

- Thu Dau Mot University on 7 September 2021 with 237 students
- FPT University on 8 Dec 2021 with 20 students
- Lac Hong University on 16 Oct 2021 with 324 students

Thu Dau Mot University on 7 September 2021 with 237 students

- Culturama held on 14, 16, and 18 June 2021

Live Thai Cooking Workshops were offered students with the help of PIM Food Academy. The virtual cooking classes were excellent ways to introduce students to different parts of Thai culture. PIM's very own Iron Chef Mr. Wootisak (Nor) Simhong guided the participants. The students were able to ask Chef Nor questions in real time.

Last year, the virtual cooking class took place during the following dates:

- Friday 12 March 2021
- Monday 4 October 2021
- Monday 6 December 2021

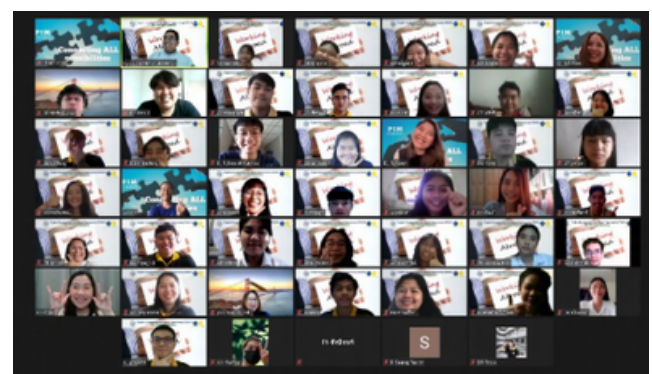

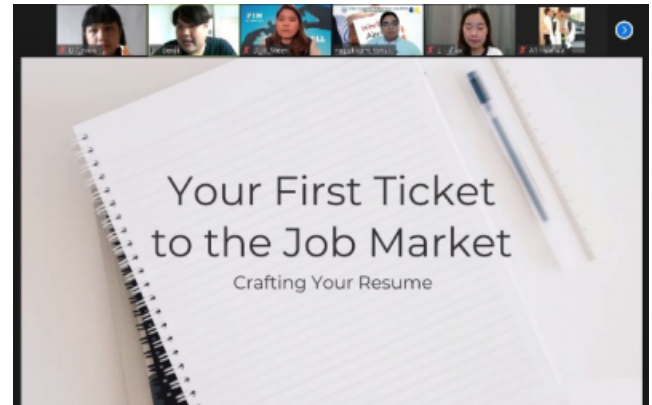

ED-GO

NEW

IR launched ED-GO (English Development for Global Opportunity) in collaboration with several faculty to assist in preparing PIM students for the real workplace. ED-GO is an afternoon workshop that simulates situations such as job interviews. The program also includes tutorials on building a strong resume and shares the basics of writing professional e-mails.

In 2021, students from the following faculties joined IR's ED-GO sessions:

1. Innovative Agricultural Management
2. Management Science
3. Creative Educational Management

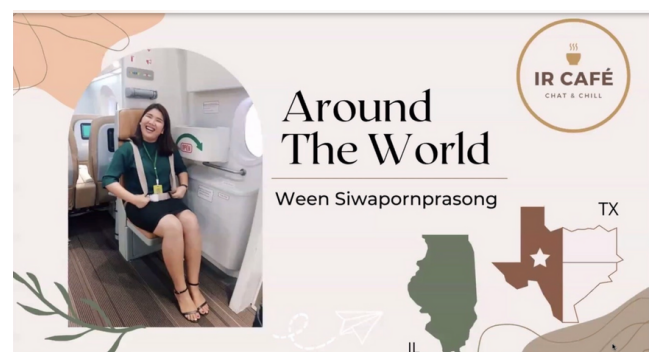

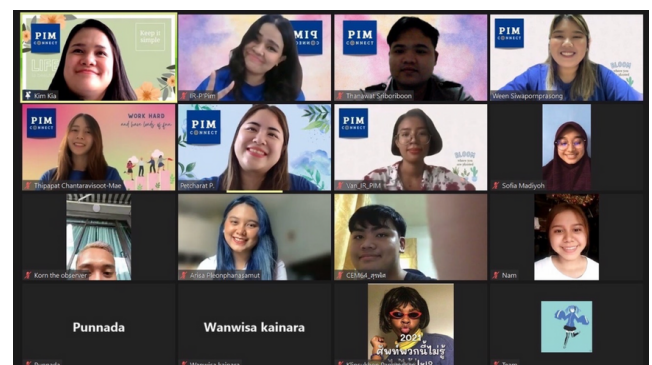

IR CAFE

NEW

This activity aimed to create a space for students to develop conversational skills through a 4 week program.

The IR team developed a pilot program that aim enhanced the confidence of students while also developing their critical thinking skills, which is important when carrying a conversation.

The first batch of students were pre-selected by the Faculty of Creative Educational Management.
